St. Paul Lutheran School Student Internet Use Policy

We are pleased to offer St. Paul Lutheran School students access to the Internet to support educational activities. To gain access to the Internet, all students must receive permission from their parents or guardians as indicated by their signature on the St. Paul Lutheran School Parent Internet Consent form.

If parent prefers that a student no have Internet access, use of the computers is still possible for more traditional purposes such as word processing.

The Internet and your child

Access to the Internet will enable students to explore thousands of libraries, databases, museums and other repositories of information.

Students and their families need to be aware that St. Paul Lutheran School cannot control the content of the information that is available on the Internet. While St. Paul Lutheran School's teachers intend to use Internet resources for constructive educational goals, students may find ways to access other materials. We believe the value and educational benefits of the information outweigh the possibility that students may find inappropriate material.

Teachers are aware that St. Paul Lutheran School students must be monitored at all times when they are using the Internet to research information and we will teach our students responsible use of the Internet. Ultimately, however, parents and guardians of minor children are responsible for setting and communicating the standards that their children should follow when using media and information sources. Therefore, we support and respect each family's right to decide whether or not apply for access.

ST. Paul Lutheran School teachers, parents, and students should be aware that access to the Internet can be temporarily or permanently withdrawn from students who do not respect the rights of others or who do not follow the rules and regulations established by St. Paul Lutheran School. To help our students understand appropriate internet use and online behavior, we will offer class instruction about appropriate online behavior, including interaction with others on social networking websites and in chat rooms, cyberbullying awareness, and appropriate responses to cyberbullying.

Although St. Paul Lutheran School students do not have access to social networking websites and chat rooms on our computers, we believe it is important for our students to be educated on this important topic, since cyberbullying has become a widespread phenomenon amount young computer users.
